Elephant at the Border: A Peace Church Response to Annexation

Amidst political discord and talks of annexation across the Canada-US border, what is the call to followers of Jesus to respond? MCC is hosting four webinars that will explore learning from nonviolent power, peace possibilities and inter-national solidarity.

Join this series of online workshops designed to inspire reflection and action on our role as a peace church in light of discussions surrounding a potential forced annexation of Canada by the United States. Each webinar will have a guest speaker and time for small group discussion. While it's encouraged to attend all four sessions, you will still gain valuable insights if you're not able to attend them all. Click here to register for each workshop

Session #2: Who Would Jesus Polarize? Sunday, May 11 | 7 - 8:30pm
Jesus taught peace but caused division - an apparent paradox. What's the relationship between peace and division biblically and theologically?

Session #3: Reconciling Resistance and Reconciliation Sunday, June 1 | 7 - 8:30pm
All around the world many people have freed themselves and secured justice by weaving together nonviolent resistance and peacebuilding. What can we learn from them?

Session #4: National Defense Without Weapons Sunday, June 8 | 7 - 8:30pm
What if our current crisis is an opportunity for church-based, peace innovation - a realistic way to protect against invasion without violence?
